FLOWERING CHERRIES IN OCTOBER

There are few districts in New Zealand where the Japanese flowering cherries do not flourish, and few trees are more desirable for a gay splash of colour in October. The above picture, taken in the garden of the editors, shows the colourful effect of cherries used to give height to herbaceous borders in a formal setting.

The True

OTAKI PINK

(FRANK ALDRITT)

Immense beautifully ruffled blooms of lovely soft rosy-carmine pink. A flawless pure self colour with no other shading; fine long stems and non-bursting. A grand cut flower.

2/6 each, 1/1ft.

Welcome to Alfred Buxton's Gardens, a directory of gardens designed by Alfred Buxton originally compiled during research for my book The Fairer Side of Buxton: Alfred Buxton's gardens and the women who loved them, and added to since the book was published and I've become aware of additional Buxton gardens.

The information listed has been gathered from garden plans, A W Buxton & Co Ltd publications, advertisements, local histories and information from past and present Buxton garden owners. A few things to note:
